Alberta Moisture Slightly Below Normal

During the past week the total moisture condition for Alberta has declined 3 per cent, Saskatchewan has gone back 3 per cent, and Manitoba only 1 per cent, giving a total decline of 3 per cent for the three Prairie Provinces. Adding together the precipitation which occurred last fall during the months of August, September and October, and the rains which have occurred from April 1st to July 21st, inclusive, and weighing for wheat average gives a moisture condition for the three Prairie Provinces, as a unit, on stubble land which was seeded to wheat, of 83 per cent of normal, and on land which was summerfallowed and that was seeded to wheat, of 85 per cent of normal, giving a round figure for the whole seeded wheat acreage of 84 per cent, as compared with 87 per cent last week, and 82 per cent a year ago.

For Alberta the moisture condition is now 80 per cent of normal, as compared with 82 per cent last week, and 92 per cent a year ago.

For Saskatchewan the similar moisture condition is now 81 per cent of normal, as compared with 84 per cent last week, and 75 per cent a year ago.

For Manitoba the similar moisture condition is now 120 per cent of normal as compared with 121 per cent last week, and 89 per cent a year ago.

Net Revenue C.N.R. Shows Nice Increase

MONTREAL, July 21st.—After payment of operating expenses, the net revenue of the Canadian National Railways all-inclusive system in the month of June amounted to $4,828,440 an increase of $1,267,236 as compared with the corresponding month of 1940, according to the monthly statement of operating revenues, operating expenses and net revenues issued this week at Headquarters of the Canadian National Railways.

Net revenue for the six months of 1941 totalled $28,108,211, an increase of $15,908,129 over the first six months of 1940.

Operating revenues for June, 1941 were $25,642,562 compared with $22,359,877 for June 1940. For the first six months of the present year, operating revenues amounted to $143,715,488. For the corresponding six months of 1940 the operating revenues amounted to $113,681,561.

The 'Man In the Air' Needs the Gas You Want

The "man at the wheel" can cut down drastically on the use of gasoline by keeping the speed of the vehicle down to reasonable proportions, speed tests have demonstrated. Every bit of gasoline he conserves helps to release fuel for our tanks and armored cars, our fighting planes and our bombers.

Actually, the experts say, it takes a 60 miles an hour than at 40. The Carter Carburetor Corporation in the United States which has distributors in Canada, has recently issued figures showing that the normal economy of a car capable of giving 25 miles per gallon (20 miles per American gallon) at 20 miles per hour, will vary widely under different driving conditions.

Constant speed tests prove that the motorist will get 25 miles per gallon at 20 miles per hour, as compared with 22.9 miles per gallon at 40 miles and 10 miles per gallon at 70 miles an hour, according to the figures distributed by the corporation, and.

Tests have shown also that it requires approximately 10 additional horsepower to increase the speed of a six-cylinder car about three miles when it is running at 70 miles per hour.

Here are the seventeen easy ways towards a fifty percent gasoline saving, as approved by auto experts:

- Reduce driving speed from 60 to 40 on open roads.
- Avoid jack-rabbit starts.
- Avoid useless or non-essential driving.
- Turn motor off when not in use, do not leave idling.
- Don't race your engine; let it warm up slowly.
- Don't strain your engine; change gears.
- Keep carburetor cleaned and properly adjusted.
- Tune up motor, timing, etc.

Keep spark plugs and valves clean. Check cooling system; overheat wastes gasoline. Maintain tires at right pressure. Lubricate efficiently; worn engines waste gasoline. Drive in groups and from work, using care alternate days. For golf, picnic and other outings, use one car instead of four. Take those short shopping trips on foot and carry parcels home. Walk to and from the movies.

Joy Gilbert Bride Of Mr. Harry Moore

At 12:30 p.m., on Wednesday, July 23rd, Miss E. Joy, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gilbert of the Edmonton district, became the bride of Mr. Harry Andrew, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ell Moore of Wetaskiwin, Alta.

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, with Rev. W. E. Sieber (United) officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a most becoming afternoon model in crepe, of beige and brown, with contrasting accessories, and her large arm-bouquet was of pink roses.

She was attended by her only sister, Alice, who wore a smart afternoon dress of two-tone blue crepe, with matching accessories; her bouquet being of pink and white carnations.

William G. (Bill), second brother of the bride, supported the groom, and Miss Eleanor Redmond played the wedding marches, and accompaniments.

During the signing of the register,

TOBACCO COMPANIES GUILTY OF 'COMBINE'

Fines totalling $210,000 were imposed on 33 of 36 Canadian tobacco manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers Monday when Mr. Justice Shepherd, Edmonton, sentenced the firms and individuals found guilty Saturday by an Alberta supreme court jury on "combine" charges. Three individuals absent from the court Monday will be sentenced at 10:00 a.m. Thursday.

The fines ranged from $20,000 for some manufacturing corporations to $200 to two of the smaller Alberta jobbers. Immediate appeals were planned by at least 34 of those 36 convicted.

a dust "I love you truly" was sung by the Misses Eileen and Jean Taylor, of Wainwright, cousins of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a delectable buffet luncheon was partaken of by some fifty guests. The table was centered with a richly-ornamented three-tiered wedding cake.

Receiving, the bride's mother wore an afternoon dress of dusty rose crepe, with white corsage. The very popular bride and groom were the recipients of a large number of gifts, both useful and beautiful, which were on display.

A large crowd of well-wishers was on hand to give an enthusiastic send-off to Mr. and Mrs. Moore, when they took the afternoon train for Edmonton. Following a brief honeymoon at Pigeon Lake, the couple will reside on the groom's farm at Wetaskiwin.

Out-of-town guests included: Miss Reta Moore, of Edmonton, sister of the groom and Pte. R. H. Gilbert of Medicine Hat, brother of the bride; also Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hunt and Miss Viola and Mr. Clarence Kellner, of Edmonton, and Mr. and Mrs. H. U. Taylor, of Wainwright.

Joseph A. Clarke, B.A., L.L.B., K.C., five times mayor and eight times alderman of the city of Edmonton, died Sunday. He was found dead by nurses of the family. Death came peacefully in his sleep. He was 71 years old and had resided in Edmonton since 1908.

The directors of the National System were fortunate in being able to announce the appointment to the presidency of an officer having the exceptional qualifications for the post postulated by Mr. B. C. Vaughan, whose railway career extends over some 42 years. In appointing Mr. Vaughan to the Chief Executive office the Directors look forward with confidence to the continued development and success of the National System.

The Bank of Montreal Crop Report says that excessive heat, with below-average precipitation, has caused a further decline in crop conditions in the Prairie Provinces. In Manitoba, southeast Saskatchewan, southwest Alberta, the Peace River country, and scattered isolated districts, prospects continue favorable, but elsewhere immediate and copious rains are required to prevent further decline and in some districts, failure. In some districts of Saskatchewan and Alberta, a feed shortage is feared. There have been some local hail losses in southern Saskatchewan and central Alberta. A sawfly infestation is reported in southern sections of Alberta and Saskatchewan and damage may be considerable. Sugar beets in Alberta and Manitoba are progressing satisfactorily.

In British Columbia, excessively hot, dry weather throughout the province has adversely affected crops. Tree fruits are maturing rapidly, with indicated yield of apples 70 percent of average, peaches and plums 100 percent and prunes and apricots 110 percent. Vegetable crops are making good progress with average yields indicated.

In Alberta, high temperatures and inadequate moisture during the past week have caused serious crop deterioration. Prospects continue good in the Peace River and the southwest, but rain is required for filling. Elsewhere, conditions vary from fair to bad, with grains maturing prematurely; rain is urgently needed, particularly in the central and eastern areas. Some sawfly damage is reported in the southeastern area. The feed situation is only fair.

Saskatchewan—Severe heat, without general compensating rains, has further impaired conditions over wide areas and the entire Province requires rain to promote filling. In the southeast, extreme northeast and isolated districts in the central section, prospects remain favorable, but elsewhere they are poor. Grain is maturing too rapidly, and there is some danger of a feed shortage. There has been some local hail damage, and sawfly damage is reported in the south.

Miss Ruth Harding has returned home after having spent a vacation at the coast.

DRY DUCKS

Over 15,000 ducks flourish on Canada's largest commercial duck farm at Knowlton, Que., and although the 100-acre colony is bounded on three sides by water these arid members of the family Anatidae are bereft of its delights—except as a beverage, writes F. F. Field in the June issue of C.I.L. Oval.

Their turn-the-back-on-the-water attitude is not entirely voluntary, but because the Quebec farm has been successful in raising a special hand-bred variety of duck. The weight factor and marketability of these internationally-known ducks is dependent to a great extent upon feeding.

The most rigid scientific principles are applied and the duck chow is fed in chemical pellet form, the ingredients of which range all the way from iodized salt to alfalfa leaf meal. So, although their life is a short and merry one they are well-housed, scientifically fed and they even survive the death of water!

Elk Island National Park is closely linked with the saving of the plains buffalo from possible extinction for here were received the first shipments of buffalo purchased by the Dominion Government from Michael Pablo, the Montana rancher. Later the main herd was transferred to Wainwright but a few dozen perhaps to wild to be rounded up easily, were left at Elk Island. From this vigorous stock has grown the finest herd of plains buffalo on the North American continent, and since the closing of Wainwright as a animal park, Elk Island has become the home of Canada's national buffalo herd. Besides the buffalo which now number over 1200, the park contains about 600 elk and a number of moose and deer. It is also regarded as one of the important bird sanctuaries in Western Canada. In early summer its lakes are covered with water fowl and more than 30 species including local and migratory birds have been observed within the park's boundaries.

Although Elk Island Park was originally established as a wild animal preserve for the elk and moose-deer of the region it has now become a popular vacation centre. Its numerous lakes surrounded by rolling, well wooded country attracts thousands of visitors each year. Last year admissions to the park numbered nearly 50,000. It is only about an hour's run from the city of Edmonton and is accessible either by motor road or railway. The motor road runs right through the park from north to south and connects with the main provincial highway system. Because of its proximity to Edmonton and Lamont, no hotel accommodation has been established in the park so far.

In addition to the wild life and scenic attraction in the park, opportunities for outdoor enjoyment are many and varied. On the eastern end of Astotin Lake, where there is a long stretch of clean, sandy beach a recreational centre has been developed. The beach slopes gradually into the water affording fine bathing facilities under safe and pleasant conditions. Bath-houses have been built for the convenience of visitors and boats are available for hire during the summer season. The area around the beach has been landscaped with trees and walks and liberally supplied with rustic seats and benches. Here are tennis courts and playing fields for the grown ups, and amusement galore for the little children, including swings and see-saws.

A nine-hole golf course has been constructed on the rolling plateau southeast of Astotin Lake for those who feel a holiday is not complete without a round of golf. An attractive club-house, where light refreshments may be obtained, has been built for the convenience of players and visitors. The fairways and greens of the golf course are flanked by shade trees and are maintained in excellent condition. Thus Elk Island park is rapidly becoming an important unit of Canada's national system of recreational areas and wild life sanctuaries.

Canada's National Parks, which began in Alberta 56 years ago with the setting aside of a scenic area around the Hot Mineral Springs at Banff, now number 17 with a total area of over 29,000 square miles. There are in addition nine National Historic Parks, as distinct from the National Parks which are distinguished by their wilderness character and wild life attractions. These parks, large and small, are serving a two-fold purpose at present; they are attracting large numbers of tourists from the United States who bring with them currency much needed for Canada's purchase of war material in that country, and they are providing healthful recreation for the people of Canada. Because of war time restrictions on travel abroad, Canada.

Two members of Great Britain's Women's Mechanized Transport Corps, Mrs. Iva McLeod, left, and Miss Winifred Ashford, are pictured getting a view of New York City from the roof of the Hotel Pennsylvania after their arrival from Canada, to which they travelled by conveyed ship. The structure to which Miss Ashford is pointing is the Empire State building, world's tallest. On three months' leave, they came into New York uniformed and carrying gas masks and steel helmets in place of pocketbooks. They expect to spend much of their time in the U.S., conferring with Red Cross officials and giving a picture of the work that British women are doing in home defence.

34 BOMBERS, 77 FIGHTERS

Bought by Dutch Colonists to Help Free Holland

Thirty-four bombers, all Dutch-manned, and 77 fighters are the result to date of the aircraft drive in Netherlands colonies to help Britain's war effort. Of the total received from the drive £1,200,000, or more than ten per cent has come from Queen Wilhelmina's subjects overseas.

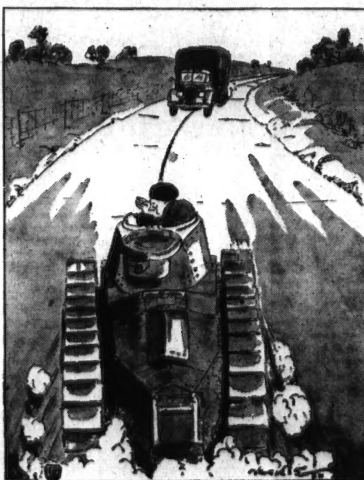

Netherlands East Indies sent 11,000,000 of it, nearly all in dollar exchange. In Batavia, on the anniversary of the invasion of Holland by the Nazis, the people gave one-third of their wages. A boothblack there, Kutoke by name, allotted a daily contribution from his earnings. Even the prisoners gave up their pocket-money.

The native people of Palembangche Bovenlanden (South Sumatra) gathered 41,000 florins. In five months these people sent three Spitfires into battle and gave 15,000 florins towards a bomber.

In U.S.A. a show of 14 paintings by Van Gogh netted 18,000 dollars. Suriname (Dutch Guinea) sent 5,000 pounds. In Curacao of the Mosquito coast, the Ladies' Spitfire Committee collected 40,000 florins: the whole colony 400,000. Aruba native folk put 6,000 florins together.

All of them have given freely of their money, asking one thing only, that these avengers of the rape of Holland shall bear names like The Flying Dutchman, Middelburg I and II, Tapanoeil and Rotterdam.

World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

Many fields this year have been badly affected with the pale Western cutworm, and much crop has been damaged. It is far too late now to do anything about this present crop, for the only way to control this insect is to take certain precautions with the summerfallow the year before the crop is seeded.

All work on fields that are being summerfallowed this year should stop not later than the first of August, and the fields then should be left completely undisturbed until the middle of September. No cattle or stock should be permitted to walk on the fields. All this so that the rains which fall may form a crust on the summerfallowed soil which will make the land unsuitable for egg-laying by the cutworm moths. If no eggs are laid in the fall, then the field will be reasonably free from cutworms the following year.

This is the advice given by the Government experts who have spent many years in the careful study of the life habits of the pale Western cutworm, and who have made many experiments with the control of the insect. For several years I tried this control method on my own summerfallow, and I found it prevents much damage.

Following factors have tended to raise price:—Bromhall states broad grain prospects below normal in Scandinavian countries, with supplies almost exhausted—Reports from Europe indicate below normal returns in grain crops—Australian "carry-over" this year is officially estimated at 16 million bushels, far below normal—Fighting in Ukraine continues to threaten in grain crop.

Following factors have tended to lower price:—U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates production of all wheat in the U.S. at about 924 million, 107 million more than last year—Wheat production in the Orient is expected to exceed the yields of 1940—Officials state that U.K. to take over 2,000,000 bushels of U.S. corn under Lease-Land.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE WEAK COLONY

(Experimental Farms News)

Strong colonies of young bees are essential for successful wintering. Weak colonies increase the risk of winter losses and are useless as producers the following season. If weak colonies are found in the fall, the usual practice is to unite two or more of them together first killing the fight out among themselves. Such practice is wasteful for many of the weaker colonies may contain young, vigorous queens which if wintered would either start new colonies or save others the following spring, says G. B. Gooderham, Dominion Apiarist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Instead of uniting the weak colonies in the orthodox way, it is more economical to bring two of them together in one hive as separate units. If a colony is so weak that its bees do not cover six standard combs, remove five of the lightest combs shaking all the bees back on to the five remaining combs pushing these over to one side of the hive. Fit a thin, solid division board in the center of the hive thus leaving one half of the latter empty into which the five combs and bees from another weak colony is placed. There are now two weak colonies in one hive but separated by the division board. It is imperative that the division board fits snugly so that the bees cannot pass from one compartment to the other otherwise one of the queens will be killed. A dividing block must also be fitted into the hive entrance so as to provide a separated entrance for each compartment. Those double colonies are fed for the winter in the usual manner and can be wintered either in the cellar or in packing cases outside. In the spring if any colony needs re-queening, one queen may be taken from a double colony for this purpose and the division board removed when the bees will unite peacefully into a good strong colony. If one of the queens are needed for re-queening, however, the doubles may be left together until one or both sides become strong enough to transfer into single hives again thus the two weak colonies of the fall now become two strong producers and no time is lost in importing queens.

The U.S. army and navy are reported to have contracted for the above type of six-lobed, 1,000 pound

TWENTY-TWO LOCOMOTIVES FROM BRITAIN

Shipped Safely Through Mediterranean to Turkey

Britain's locomotive works are still keeping overseas railways supplied with equipment despite the fact that they are also turning out vast quantities of such war equipment as tanks, torpedoes, shells, bombs, gun mountings and carriages, and even mooring buoys and anchors.

Twenty-two locomotives, having a total value of over 300,000 pounds, were shipped from Britain in the first three months of this year to Turkey, Egypt, Iraq, South Africa and the Straits Settlements.

Shipments are still going on and despite war hazards in the Mediterranean, further deliveries have been made to Turkey since the end of the first quarter, making a total of 22 this year.

Where new locomotives cannot be supplied Britain is sending boilers for re-equipping existing engines. A total of 38 was exported during the March quarter, to India, South Africa, Persia and Uruguay. These have an average value of 2,000 pounds each.

Britain's locomotive works now employ over 10,000 hands, including many women.

TEN MILES OF CARPETS

In designs from a Yorkshire Garden Ten miles of Axminster carpets in two novel designs have been shipped from Yorkshire to the United States during the past year.

The designs were created from flowers picked by the manufacturer from his own garden in the midst of moorland made familiar to the world by "Wuthering Heights."

The flowers were sketched and incorporated in two patterns named after the home of the manufacturer and that of a fellow director. In design and coloring they were so successful that a group of prominent American carpet manufacturers asked to see them displayed in New York.

During last year trade with the United States was good for the makers of these carpets sold more than four times as many Axminster piece goods and Broadloom plain Wilton as in 1939.

The flowers of Yorkshire are now being arranged in other designs. Their success in the United States has already been repeated in Australia and New Zealand.

Canada's 1st Division overseas has presented a Spitfire fighter to the Royal Air Force. After the presentation ceremony at an airfield somewhere in England, the division commander, Major-General G. R. Peakes, inspected the fighter-station. Major-General Peakes is shown here, right, with Air Vice-Marshal J. M. Andrews. The Spitfire given by the Canadian soldiers is in the background.

HITLER AS CRUSADER

Of all the roles that Hitler has chosen to play, for the sole purpose of getting what he wants from a credu-lous world, none is more fantastic
than this present role of White Knight leading the civilized people of Europe on a holy crusade against Bolshevism. The stage is being set for this spectacle by diligent Nazi propaganda, to blind forces to the "holy war." Hitler, the erstwhile pal
of Stalin, is being clothed with gleaming armour, and heralded, with loud
blasts from Goebbels's trumpet, as the savior of mankind from the dark forces of communist destruction.

The fraudulence of this whole manuoeuvre can be demonstrated by two simple tests. In the first place, let any American who is now tempted to regard Hitler as a crusader against Bolshevism ask himself who invited Bolshevism into Central Europe? Who made the pact of August, 1939? Who conspired with Stalin to destroy Poland, the best bulwark against a western spread of Russian influence?
Who, if not Hitler? And in the second place, still more important, let the same American ask himself what real difference there is, anyway, between the Bolshevik system of Stalin and the National Socialist system of Hitler. Both are demonstrated enemies of established religion. Both demand worship of the state, headed by a supreme "Leader" who becomes essentially a god. Both permit not the slightest deviation from a party
"line," under threat of excommunication or extermination. Both suppress minority opinion by such methods as star-chamber trials, tortures, concentration camps and secret murder. Both treat human rights as non-existent
and make human beings the mere slaves of an all-powerful and self-perpetuating oligarchy. What difference can it make to the churchman or the business man or the workingman or the farmer whether he is ruled by Bolshevism or by National Socialism? What vital difference, from our point of view, exists between the two at bottom, except that the one (German) is in much better position at this moment than the other (Russian) to attack Britain and break down the defences of our Western World?

The purpose of this flood of Goebbels-created propaganda, picturing Hitler as the White Knight of Christendom, is plain enough. This purpose is to divide our counsels and to paralyze our will. We ought not let ourselves be fooled at so critical a moment by a strategy so obvious.
This is the time to give our ships the protection of our Navy and to throw into the Western Front, to blind forces to the "holy war." Hitler, the erstwhile pal
of Stalin, is being clothed with gleam-
ing armour, and heralded, with loud
blasts from Goebbels's trumpet, as

SOME OF THE FACTS

Just what a 50 per cent saving in gasoline consumption would mean on a galvanic basis over the Dominion is undoubtedly an item of importance, particularly at this time of threatened scarcity. Something even greater importance to Canada, however,
would be that 50 per cent saving accomplished by the voluntary cooperation of owners of motor vehicles.

Such a result would not be impossible were full facts of the situation
we are facing understood by the people. Here are some of them:
Aside from production in Britain,
Canada is largely dependent upon the United States for its supplies of crude oil,
from which gasoline is extracted.
Crude oil supplies for the Eastern States and most of Canada are waterborne by tanker vessels, just as Great Britain gets its supplies of crude oil.
Because Britain's tanker fleet has been seriously depleted through German submarine and air attacks, the United States, pledged to give all-out aid to the Allied cause, has transferred many tankers formerly used to carry oil to Canada and Eastern States, to trans-Atlantic service.
The United States oil industry has embarked upon a $100,000,000 tanker building program, but it may be 18 months before the first of these will be launched. Pipe line facilities for sufficient oil transport would take more than a year to construct. Rail transportation is out of the question for many reasons, not the least important being cost.

With full support of the people of both Canada and the Eastern States in their response to government appeals for gasoline saving it will be possible, so authorities believe, to come through the shortage difficulty
without too severe a pinch.
The degree of support given the appeal by the people of Canada will show clearly to what extent they are ready to make personal sacrifice in the war cause to which they, also,
are pledged.

SMOLDERING FIRES

Where there is much smoke there must be fire, and there is plenty of "smoke" to indicate that throughout the occupied countries sullen submission to Nazi bullying is giving way to impatient revolt.

From Norway to the Balkans and from France to Czechoslovakia come reports of growing unrest, of expressed hostility to the occupational forces, of overt acts of sabotage, and of punitive measures adopted by the garrisons to suppress popular demonstrations. Berlin announces that wholesale shootings have taken place in Yugoslavia, in an attempt to stem the tide of insurgency, and Berlin is not likely to tell its troubles abroad
if there is any way to squelch the news.

This of course is a reaction from the challenge Hitler has met in Russia and the widening devastation of R.A.F. raids on German munitions centres and supply systems. The longer the Russian deadlock continues and the farther the bombers spread destruction, the bolder the suppressed peoples will become, and the weaker the garrisons that hold them
in check.

Immense as they are, the Fuehrer's forces are spread thinly over an area
so vast that only the complete disarmament of the populations prevents an immediate continent-wide insurrection. Even lack of arms and the brutal character of their jailers has not cowed the subject peoples and they know now that the tyrants who struck them down is not invincible.
The "V" that is being chalked on Nazi barracks and buildings all over occupied Europe is the handwriting
on the wall.

OUR FLEDGE

(by G. L. Creed, R.C.A.F.)

We Shall Not Falter Or Fall —
Though all the Powers of Hell on Earth shall assail —
Though from once friendly skies
swift-winged Death
Spew nameless Horror with each fleeting breath —
Though Blood and Tears be all we have to spend —
We Shall Go On To The End!

We Shall Not Falter Or Fall —
Though terror-riven hearts around us
quail —
As Evil, monstrous, shakes with iron tread
Our ancient Landmarks, sheltering
Honoured Dead
Whose very dust commands us to defend —
We Shall Go On To The End!

We Shall Not Falter Or Fall —
Though, to all eyes but ours, the Holy Grail
Of Freedom be by hopelessness
obscured —
Ours is the Vision — nor may we
be lured
From this our Brightest, eastern paths to wend —
We Shall Go On To The End!

We Shall Not Falter Or Fall —
Though all our struggles seem without avail —
Though all our treasure go to pay
the Price,
Leaving but Life itself to sacrifice —
Though from us all but Faith the fee may rend —
We Shall Go On To The End!

We Shall Not Falter Or Fall —
Though hearts bereft shall ache —
Though lips grow pale
That murmured with a twisted
smile, "Farewell!" —
Such hearts shall still hold Freedom's Citadel —
Such lips, grim-set, the Tyrant's
Doom portend —
We Shall Go On To The End!

We Shall Not Falter Or Fall —
Let those who follow after tell the tale
Of how, for all men's Freedom, free
men fought,
Setting their lives and liberties at naught —
Deeming that Freedom all else
must transcend —
We Shall Go On To The End!

WORLD'S WEEK

BY
HAROLD L. WEIR

Associate Editor of the "Edmonton Bulletin" and author of the daily column "From the News."

The events of the past year have tended to paint the picture of Hitler's war machine as a vast irresistible juggernaut that has swept over Europe
flattening everything in its path.

Whether we are conscious of it or not, we have all
more or less acquired the defeatist idea
that this organized instrument of destruction could not be stopped.

The tremendous moral value of the stand of the Russians, then, is obvious.
Whether Hitler ultimately crushes opposition in that country or not,
Russian successes up to the present
point show clearly that when Hitler's armies are confronted by armies of equal moral strength and even of inferior mechanical equipment, they can be defeated — just as they are being defeated, in some sectors, in Russia.

The Red army does not need to attain complete victory to crush the myth of Nazi invincibility.

That myth has already been crushed. And our outlook has become the more wholesome for that reason.

It is beginning to be apparent, too,
that Hitler's sweeping victories in other sections of Europe are not so profitable as it first appeared.

In occupying half the continent,
Hitler has seized a great deal of territory. But he has also acquired several of the finest headaches any would-be conqueror of the world has ever suffered.

Everywhere he has met sabotage, hatred and rebellion. And as time goes on, the situation grows more and more hazardous for him in every country he has occupied.

In the newly-created kingdom of Croatia, conditions are so bad that the Axis-nominate king, the Duke of Spoleto, has not yet dared to set foot in his new domain. A state of terrorism exists. There are a dozen murders every night. The peasants are openly scornful of their German-Italian dominated government.

Even the most optimistic pro-Nazis
are quite clear that the situation cannot continue. Something will have to change soon.
Similar conditions prevail in Greece
where the Greek people are offering every possible opposition to the Nazi occupants.

Executions are daily occurrences
And the general confusion is heightened by the fact that a number of British and Australian soldiers are still fugitives in the Grecian hills.

At frequent intervals, these hand-
to-hand and raid the smaller German garrisons, killing large numbers of Nazi soldiers.
All this, of course, keeps the country in a constant ferment and adds to the difficulties confronting Adolf Hitler.

Norway, of course, has long been

G. E. GLASS, Capt.,
Officer Commanding.

The scene of costly sabotage and hostile acts against the German occupants.

Railways are constantly dynamited
and bridges blown up. German soldiers have been mysteriously murdered. They are ridiculed in the streets and offered every possible humiliation.

This is so hard on the Nazis
that cases of mutiny have been reported among the troops stationed there.
Nor are the Norwegians growing accustomed to the occupation. On the contrary, the lapses of time only makes them the more determined to balk and injure their invaders.

Rumania is another Axis country
that is in a state bordering on revolt.

There have been further difficulties with the Iron Guard — more assassinations and fore wholesale arrests.

Rumania is strictly under military law and the pro-Axis rulers admit they are sitting on a powder magazine
that might explode at any moment.

A similar state of affairs prevails
throughout Holland and Belgium
where the "V for Victory" campaign is in full swing.

That the mere act of chalking the letter V in public places and tapping it out in Morse should upset the German nerves indicates how recar-dous jump the German nerves have become.

Indeed, the entire "V campaign"
is less significant of Dutch and Belgian determination than it is of German jitteriness.

If the Nazis were not ready to jump out of their skin and if they did not live in mortal terror of uprisings, this psychological campaign would be no more than a joke.

But if things are going badly in the countries Hitler has seized, they are going no less badly in the countries
he had hoped to seize.

The plots he had formulated to cause uprisings in the South American republics have suddenly blown up.
Everywhere — exposures are being made of Nazi propagandists. Bolivia has even sent the German ambasador packing home.

The Latin Americans seem to have wakened up to their peril at a time when Nazi influence was gaining terrific momentum in their continent.

This is the final article in the present series by Harold L. Weir. A new series by Mr. Weir will begin in this newspaper the week of September 20.

RENDEZ-VOUS IN VIENNA

BY LESLIE HAMILTON

CHAPTER TEN—
Zero Hour

With the radio tuned very low and his charming comrade, in her rich, pleasant voice, translating the news bulletins which came spasmodically over the air, Munroe retained only one doubt in his own mind as they enjoyed their tête-à-tête in their tranquil place, and that was: when would the curtain rise on the impending second chapter of the Great War?

Would the coming week see the real show begin? And upon what day would Act One commence? Had they twenty-four hours, forty-eight or seventy-two; four, five, or yet several days in which to complete their task and get out of the country into Belgium and safety?

"Listen!" Olga exclaimed with a start, as a sharp scintilla of light sounded harshly from the depths of the radio. "All express trains and through services are indefinitely cancelled from midnight to night! Now, what are we going to do?"

"Take it easy, take it easy!" Rex counselled. "We're not completely sunk yet. If all trains have been suspended, something which I very much doubt; at least not yet. If necessary, we'll peddle our way through on bicycles, so don't worry; it can be done in a pinch. But it does sound as though things are getting rather warm, nevertheless!" he admitted gravely, his mind swiftly grasping with his new problem.

"Things were bad enough before," Olga remarked dejectedly, "but this . . ."

"I know," Munroe chimed in. "It just about puts the belly lid on it; however, there's no use crying over spilled milk. We'll simply have to make the best of it."

"I wish we knew how serious the situation really is," Olga looked anxiously at her companion.

"If I tell you what," he suggested, "it will relieve your mind a bit. I'll toddle into town and see what news I can gather around the lobbies of the leading hotels. There'll be plenty of anxious tourists haunting the enquiry bureaus and perhaps some of them will have heard what's actually going on."

"I wish you would," she thanked him. "And while you're out, I think I'll take a bath and then listen to the radio again, just in case any further announcements come through."

"That's a good idea," Munroe agreed. "And in case I'm late returning, and you've turned in, better let me have your key to the flat; then I won't disturb you when I do get back."

After learning all he could regarding the latest hectic developments, Rex lingered for awhile in the Kartnerstrasse, now filled with streams of frightened tourists hurrying to escape from Germany before the coming hell broke loose in earnest. The rest of the evening he employed to good advantage, making a final survey of the former von Armburg residence, preparatory to formulating a final plan for recovering the documents and Olga's legacy. It was, therefore, well past midnight when Munroe reached 42 Langgasse and, tipped, silently as he thought, into the girl's apartment.

"Is that you, Rex?" she called softly from the bedroom, obviously relieved to hear his return.

"It's none other than your humble servant."

"Did you have any luck; any more news?"

"Oh yes," he replied, "although it's not too good. Plenty of rumours, but little authentic information."

"Do come in and tell me all about it. I can't possibly wait until morning."

"Are you attired to receive a 'beau brummel' in your boudoir, at this unseasonable hour?"

"Certainly, you old fustibody! I'm wearing my dressing gown over my pyjamas, and I'm half tucked under the covers besides; so please come in. Mr. Ultra Respectability!"

"Stepping into the bedroom without further ado, her guest pulled a chair indicated by Olga, to the side of the bed and, gingerly setting his near two hundred pounds on the flimsy featherweight article of furniture, flashed her a broad, good humored smile as he said in quick repartee: "What an attractive 'bride' you look, my lovely chérie, draped in your diaphanous in this enchanting 'honey-moon' atmosphere!"

"This is nineteen thirty-nine, 'darling,' so be your age!" came the prompt retort, accompanied by a coquettish glance from beneath a pair of fine, delicately arched eyebrows.

"O tempora! O mores!" (O the times—O the manners), reproved her with much mock gravity that he was immediately told, with a half-smothered ripple of amusement, to number the church among his missed vocations. "However, let me have your report, sir," imitating his air of solemnity, "before I order you from my chamber for 'lese-majesté'!"

"Okay, carrots; here it is: To sum it up in four words—the Ekodus is on!"

"What do you mean, the Ekodus?"

"Exactly what I say. Everyone who can shake the dust of war-mad Germany from their dainty, or otherwise, feet is taking a powder for the tall timber and the wide open spaces! The Grand Hotel is now practically empty; and to have seen the panic-stricken guests leaving, you'd have thought the princely hotel was on fire."

"Good heavens! In it as bad as all that?"

"It certainly is, my beautiful prisoner of Zenda. The unanchored element of this fair home of Johann Strauss are waiting their helter-skelter ways to Hungary, Italy and what have you, just as though 'old Nick' himself was stepping on their heels."

"Then the trains are not all cancelled," she exclaimed quickly. Otherwise, how are the people leaving?"

"Precious few are going by train," he corrected her misconception, "because the buffers are few and far between. There is a local crawler in the morning to Wells, and another in the evening to the same place. From Wells, there is believed to be a similar 'bit and a nail' service to Passau, but it's not guaranteed. Beyond Passau," Rex continued, "it's all in the lap of the gods. Most of the 'exitées' I've seen are scurrying out in taxicabs, hired and private cars, motorcycles, busses and even bicycles!"

There's also the tri-daily bus service and two trains a day still running to Budapest, and the river steamers to the same place, as you probably know; but they're no good to us. The control examination, which takes place before they leave Vienna, bars us from those avenues of departure."

"What about airplane services?"

"All cancelled, except to Italy and Switzerland. But you can forget them too; they're all booked solid for several days ahead and, even if they weren't," he added with a wry grin, "the same objection with respect to the local examination of passengers marks them off our list."

"All of which means that we're exactly where we were before. We still don't know how far away from here we may, or may not, be able to get. Isn't that it?"

"That's how it stands," Rex admitted. "So, all we can do is trust to luck and carry on. Meanwhile, my dear, as we can't do anything until morning, I think I'll say goodnight and follow your example by having a bath; that is, unless it will disturb you?"

"Not at all," Olga assured him. "You'll find clean towels in the linen closet, and goodnight, Rex," she concluded, as her cavalier returned to the living room, closing the bedroom door behind him.

The moment breakfast was over, the following morning, Munroe announced his intention of going to the city in order to settle the money changing act mentioned on the Sunday afternoon.

"Are you going to the sporting shop for a cycling outfit and the bicycles at the same time? Because, if so, I'll run along to the second-hand market while you're away."

"Yes, I think I might as well kill two birds with one stone, so to speak; and, while I think of it, add some cotton wool and a strong, wide bandage to our list. Three or four suitcase straps will be needed as well," Rex added; "to see what you can find, will you please?"

"In that case, you will need German money. Just a moment and I'll get some from my handbag."

"That will be enough," Rex thanked her, as Olga returned in a few moments, and gave him two hundred marks.

"How about a flashlight, or have you one?" was her next query.

"Clever thought; I haven't, as a matter of fact; and, in case of accident, better get two; one for yourself and one for me. Incidentally, I think I will pick up my club bag from the station and leave it at the cycle shop until I go back for the machines this afternoon."

"If you are going to do that, will you please wait a minute until I pack my own overnight case, then you can take it along with you and leave it there also," dashing into the bedroom to gather her personal necessities together.

It didn't take her very long to pack the few belongings she would need on their trip, and within a few minutes his companion smilingly handed it over to Rex, saying as she did so: "Shall I wait for you here, after I finish the market?"

"Yes, I think that will be best," he agreed, making sure the way was clear before disappearing along the public corridor of the apartment building which led to the stairs and the street below.

By the time they reconvened in the flat, and Munroe had expressed himself well pleased with the golf case his partner had bought for twenty marks, it was after eleven o'clock; so they decided that, in view of Olga having a report to police headquarters at twelve, they would leave the next move in the game until after lunch, when they would have the entire afternoon before them.

"Did you manage all right at the sporting shop?" she enquired, bustling about, preparing the lunch.

"Quite okay. I secured all I need in the way of an outfit and two very good bikes. I also bought two light luggage grids, which the shop people are fixing over the rear mudguard of each machine. Our travelling bags will ride very nicely on those, while the rucksacks can be slung over our shoulders in true hiking fashion. Did you get any straps with them?"

"Yes, and bought the extra ones you wanted at the same time. What are they for, to strap our bags on the parcel grids?"

"For that purpose, and other reasons. And that reminds me, I nearly overlooked an important item."

"What is that?"

"We'll need some large sheets of heavy wrapping and tissue paper, and a ball of stout twine."

"To wrap the painting?"

"Precisely."

"I'll get those on my way back from police headquarters," Olga volunteered. "It's time I was going there, too; it would never do to be late on this last call."

"Good heavens, I should say not!"

"In the meantime, you can stow the cycling kit in the rucksacks, if you like. Mine is laid out on the bed in the other room," she advised him. "And be careful of those sun glasses, put them out because they will serve to hide my features a little."

"You'll make a regular Miss Raffles yet before we're through with this business," Munroe laughed. "Such foresight is worthy of a professional 'crook'."

"Thanks for the left-handed compliment," his accomplice smiled in reply, departing upon her disagreeable but compulsory errand to the Gestapo.

"With regard to the next item of business," Rex began, after the lunch had been cleared away, "I'll slip out first, and then follow you to the boat-house, taking the rucksacks and the golf case along with me. After you have rented a canoe, drift down the river close to the boathouse side of the stream, until you are clear of any possible observation from that quarter. I'll keep you in sight from the bank, and wherever you run into shore and land, I'll join you. Then we'll find a safe spot in which to sink the darn thing."

Hints for the Household

CONSERVE FOR VICTORY

Help Britain: eat 50 per cent less pork, bacon and ham. Fortunate, indeed, is the housewife who is ready for every occasion with a variety of home-made jams, conserves, and relishes on her pantry shelf.

This year it is particularly important that every scrap of fruit and vegetable be stored for future use. The question of containers is often a factor to be considered but for pickles and jams air-tight jars are not necessary. Any glass or pottery receptacles can be used. Sealing is done with paraffin wax or the new cellophane seals.

In jams, conserves and jellies, sugar, vinegar, salt and spices act as preservatives. Long boiling also aids in keeping as it concentrates the product.

There is no end to the variety of "preserves." New mixtures give new colours and new tastes, new thrills. The experienced cook should experiment for herself, but the following recipes developed by the Consumer Section, Marketing Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, are unusual and interesting in flavour and texture:

Cherry-Apple Conserve
3 cups black pitted cherries
3 cups sour red pitted cherries
3 cups chopped apple
6 cups sugar
1/2 cup water

Mix cherries, apple and water. Cook 15 minutes. Add sugar. Stir well. Cook 2 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars. Seal at once.

Pickled Carrots
Use carrots not larger than two inches. Scrape and wash the desired number. Cook 8 minutes in boiling salted water. Drain. Pack in hot sterilized jars. For each pint jar allow pickle mixture as follows:

1/2 cup cider vinegar
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon salt
Boil three minutes. Pour over carrots and seal.

Tomato-Cucumber Sauce
6 cups peeled, chopped, ripe tomatoes
6 cups cucumber (peeled, seeded, large)

Kaarlo Kiusamo, newly appointed Finnish consul-general for Canada, is shown on his arrival in New York from Finland, ending a hazardous voyage during which the ship, on which he was travelling was halted and taken to a Norwegian port by a German patrol boat.

2 cups chopped onion
2 cups cider vinegar
2 cups granulated sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon celery seed; 1 teaspoon mustard seed; 8 cloves, tied in bag.
2 teaspoons mustard
1/2 teaspoon turmeric
1 teaspoon flour

Mix vegetables with vinegar and salt. Cook 15 minutes. Add spices tied in a bag. Cook 30 minutes. Mix mustard, turmeric and flour with sugar until well blended. Add a little hot mixture. Stir to a smooth consistency. Add to boiling pickle. Cook 5 minutes. Fill sterilized jars to overflowing. Seal at once.

June Melange
2 cups pitted cherries
2 cups raspberries
2 cups gooseberries
6 cups sugar
1/2 cup water
Wash and snip gooseberries. Add water. Cook 5 minutes. Add raspberries. Cook 5 minutes. Add sugar. Cook 5 minutes or until thick. Pour into hot sterilized glasses. Seal at once.

Spiced Currants
7 lbs. red currants
6 lbs. sugar
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1 pint vinegar
1/2 oz. stick cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
Make syrup of sugar and vinegar. Add salt and spices. Boil 3 minutes. Cool. Strain. Add fruit. Cook 25 minutes, stirring often. Pour into hot sterilized jars. Seal at once.

THE ARMY BEHIND THE ARMY

A recent announcement from Ottawa that the Government's wartime chemical and explosives plants are 75 per cent complete reminds us of some interesting figures we gathered at a short time ago which show in a small way the immense construction and engineering task involved in the planning, erection and equipping of these plants. In one month the blueprint section of the engineering department of a certain Canadian firm turned out about 28,000 blueprints which, if laid flat on the ground, would cover an area of about three acres—and this before even a sod could be turned, a nail driven or a bolt fastened. Multiply that 30-day output by the months and months of day and night effort that has gone into this primary phase of Canada's war effort and we feel we have an eloquent tribute to that unsung advance guard of the army which stands behind the army—the engineers, draughtsmen, technicians and contractors.

Rendez-vous In Vienna

I found out when they change the guards last night, that's why I was away so long. There are two of the bighters, who apparently are on an eight hour shift, because the chap I saw on the job before eight were the same two jannies I saw relieved at midnight.

"But how can we deal with two of them?"

"We only need to put one of them out of commission, and that's the bird watching the gate. There isn't any need to disturb the other one, who stays out in front."

"When do you suppose they relieve the guards again; after midnight, I mean?"

"It'll be eight in the morning, unless I'm miscalculating very badly. They are evidently changed at eight, sixteen and twenty-four by the continental time system."

"You've planned everything very carefully, I'll admit; but I must confess I'll be on pins and needles until it's over, and we are well away from Vienna!" The young woman shuddered, casting an anxious glance at her companion.

"I can understand your anxiety; and as waiting is a nerve wracking period, I suggest we fill the time by revving; so let's set your alarm clock for eleven and try it?" Munroe proposed, arranging the cushions on the Chesterfield for his own nap.

"How do you feel now, as the zero hour approaches, little comrade?" Allie set for whatever the fate may hold in store for us?" Rex smiled with a smile of encouragement, as Olga's mechanical sentinel proved faithful to its trust and duly awakened them at the appointed hour.

"I am nervous and afraid, naturally; but I insisted on accompanying you, so carry on, Sir Andrew, and I will follow them," she replied in a voice of such quiet determination that, in spite of her sex, her leader was satisfied that she would prove as staunch and dependable as any male confederate; perhaps even more than some men, he reflected, recalling the blood of Highland chieftains swiftly coursing through her veins.

The DIAL REVIEW

The mere mention of horse racing these days brings dirty looks from practically the whole CJCA staff. Without Bob Fritz here to give us tips about 90 per cent of us lose money during the week. We console ourselves by thinking that we are buying hay for pretty horses—but then we have to eat too!

Starting last Thursday, in place of The Aldrich Family at 5:30, you will be hearing Woodhouse and Hawkins, the two Canadian funsters of the airwaves, and masters of many voices. This will be their first sponsored program. Also on the program will be Patricia Bailey, Charlie Sullivan (both lovely singers), and Rose Gerow and orchestra. Tune to CJCA at 5:30 every Thursday to hear this new program.

A favorite program of most of our listeners is back on the air. Its "Everyday Time"—heard at 6:45 every weekday morning. You'll be in a good mood for the rest of the day after being awakened by this cheerful half hour.

WBCA's radio stars in Hollywood are proving these days that the American fighting men like to be fed morale through the funny-bone. "One good laugh is worth a thousand speeches in building morale," pleaded the camp commander. "Give us laughs." The first to respond to the appeal was Edgar Bergen. Last October he personally flew Charlie McCarthy to the Air Corps Base at March Field, Calif. There Charlie was made an honorary master sergeant during the program. Bergen and Charlie kept right on doing their bit for General Morale with a repeat show at March Field and programs from the San Diego Naval and Marine bases. Bergen closed his season at the marine base June 29th, and already he is planning an opening Fall show from March Field in September. The marines made Charlie a sergeant major, making him the only soldier in America holding ranks in two branches of the service. Jack Benny was quick to respond to the call, too, and took his case to a show for the gods at San Diego. Now he has given up most of his summer vacation to join a motion picture troupe making a circle of all the camps. Other personages who have given their services to help the morale of the boys of the drudgery of duty and homesickness for loved ones at home are Burns and Allen, Bob Hope, Kay Kyser and Abbott and Costello.

Bing Crosby's horse-racing has been hit by a new government ruling. Finding aluminum racing shoes scarce, Bing planned to have a foundry operated by his brother cast some for his stables. But that idea was squelched—the aluminum is needed for warplanes. So now Bings nags must race in steel shoes, a handicap which probably won't make any difference in the order of their finish!

Poor Fibber McGee! He can't decide whether or not he should like the heat wave that is scorching Kansas City right now. As co-owner of a soft-drink bottling works the heat has brought him a rushing business. But on the other hand, he doesn't like heat, so has postponed his vacation visit to that spot.

In a highly mechanized world tennis courts are comparatively safe places. But mix a tennis court with a black cat and anything is apt to happen, according to Ruth Bailey (Rose Kanaky in "The Guiding Light") who is hobnobbing to and from work these days. Ruth challenged friend husband to a tennis duel. Everything was going along fine and she wasn't even losing too badly when disaster suddenly struck. While racing to the back court Ruth stumbled over a black cat which had wandered onto the court, and she fell and sprained her ankle. At the moment black cats have the top place on her "don't like" list.
